Jeremy Gnat (38) holds off Cameron Meyer (21) in the late stages of the feature last week. Gnat won his first career feature at the track.

Gnat wins career No. 1

Jeremy Gnat led 35 laps going into last week, however, his best finish has been third – twice.

The battle Creek driver overcame several obstacles in the feature last week and won his first career main event at the track.

Tim Swartz led the first two laps before Gnat took over the top spot.

Gnat was pacing the field and catching the back of the pack when a car tried to exit the track and backed up traffic.

With the track blocked, Gnat slid into another car causing damage to his car.

When he started the engine, something was causing a large noise, but went away when the hood was removed.

Gnat rejoined the field at the front of the pack.

He would endure one more caution which gave Cameron Meyer of Pierce a chance to challenge for the win.

On the final restart with four laps remaining, Meyer quickly pulled alongside and challenged Gnat on the high side.

The next lap Meyer was on the inside of Gnat and then back on the high side on the final lap.

Gnat fought off all the challenges and picked up his first victory. Meyer was second for his ninth top 5.

Joey Haase of Norfolk made a pass on Wes Hochstein of Randolph with three laps remaining to finish third.

Swartz also got by Hochstein in the closing laps for fourth place.

Hochstein finished fifth.

Tim Swartz (22) races with Wes Hochstein (21B) in the feature. Swartz won his heat race and later finished fourth in the feature. Hochstein took home a fifth place finish.

This has not been the season for two-time defending champion Jason Wilkinson of Neligh.

Wilkinson has raced three years in the Stock Car division has been the in the top two each of those years.

He won the title in 2017 and 2018 and was second in 2015. He did not run a full schedule in 2016 at the track.

Wilkinson is currently fifth in the standings 33 points back from the leader. He has two wins and nine top 5s. He has been out of the top 10 three times this season.

Hobby Stocks

Jason Wilkinson may have not had his best season, but his son Cameron Wilkinson of Neligh will be after his second straight title in the Hobby Stocks.

Cameron Wilkinson has a 20-point lead over Lance Mielke of Norfolk.

Wilkinson has eight wins and nine top 5s. He has been outside the top 10 twice.

Second in the title to Cameron Wilkinson is Lance Mielke of Norfolk.

Mielke has one win and 10 top 5s. He has been out of the top 6 twice.

Drivers go for championship titles

In the standings race for the 2019 season, three divisions are decided when they take the track and only the average number of cars start the feature.

Late Models

The closest race comes in the Late Model division as Robert Osborne of Norfolk made a late charge in the season to take a two-point lead over Ben Sukup of Norfolk.

Osborne has one win, four top 5s and has been in the top nine every week. He also has scored 16 points in his heat races throughout the season.

He also won title in the opening season at the track in 2015.

Sukup has two feature wins, six top 5s, has had two finishes outside the top 10. He has scored 13 points this season in the heat races.

Chris Johnson of Bloomfield is third in points 12 points back from the leader.

Wakefield's Travis Birkley is 19 points back in four place.

The defending Late Model champion Jim Johnson of Plainview is currently fifth in the standings – 20 points out of first.

SportMods

The next closest points race in the SportMods with a separation of 11 points.

Cameron Meyer of Pierce leads with one win and nine top 5s on the season. Meyer has two 10th place finishes for his worse nights.

Robbie Thome of Spalding has one win and eight top 5s. Thome has had three nights out of the top 10.

Defending points champion, Joey Haase of Norfolk is third in the standings 14 points back from the leader.

Sport Compacts

Unless there is a huge number of cars entered in Sport Compact division,

Ramsey Meyer's 13-point lead in the class is enough for the win.

Only six drivers have raced more than 10 nights at the track.

Meyer has won the title three out of the last four years and this will be his third straight title.

Stock Cars

Austin Brauner of Platte Center leads the Stock Car division by 18 points over Chad Bruns of Wakefield.

Brauner has one win and 11 top 5s with one finish outside the top 6 for the season.

If he wins this season, it will be his second track title as he won the Hobby Stock title in 2017.

Second in the points is Bruns, who is not a stranger in the title hunt.

He won the Stock Car title in 2015 and 2016 and was second in last season.

Bruns has two wins and nine top 5s. He has been outside the 10 twice, when he finished 13th two times.

Wilkinson captures second win of year

Jason Wilkinson of Neligh picked up his second feature victory of the season, but it was not easy.

Wilkinson was involved in an incident on the third lap and then battled it out to the finish against TeJay Mielke of Norfolk.

Derek Sehi of Neligh led the first five laps of the 18-lap feature before Wilkinson got by.

On the final restart with nine laps remaining, Mielke attacked Wilkinson several times for the lead, but could not complete the pass.

Wilkinson managed to control the front of the field to take his second win of the season and his ninth top 5.

Mielke took the checkered second for his sixth top 5.

Wakefield's Chad Bruns waited in the wings as the top two duke it out. Bruns had to settle for third.

The previous winner and points leader Austin Brauner of Platte Center took fourth.

Sehi crossed the line fifth – his best effort of the season.

Top 3 were Jason Wilkinson, TeJay Mielke and Chad Bruns.

Derek Sehi (16s) took a fifth place finish.
