Points leaders in strong position at Off Road Speedway

• By RANDY POSPISHIL sports@norfolkdailynews.com

With just five regular nights of points racing remaining in the 2022 season schedule at Off Road Speedway, four drivers have established significant leads in their respective divisions.

Three of those four won again on Saturday night.

Cory Dumpert of York secured his fourth "A" IMCA Late Models feature of the season at the Norfolk track, needing just three laps to move up from a starting position on the outside of the fifth row to the front of the 16-car field. Dumpert — who entered the night with a 20-point advantage atop the points list — promptly forged a straightaway-length lead over Norfolkans Joey Haase and Kyle Prauner for the next 18 laps, but neither finished among the top three. Another Norfolk driver, Ben Sukup — who had started alongside Dumpert and spent numerous laps in a battle over fourth place with Hoskins' Eric Vanosdall, exchanging slide jobs seemingly at every corner — joined the leaders after passing both Vanosdall and Prauner.

Sukup then inherited second place after Haase's car broke down, which also caused a caution and restart with four laps remaining. However, Sukup couldn't close enough to threaten Dumpert's victory and settled for second place. Meanwhile, Vanosdall passed Prauner during the final two laps to take third.

Similarly, Cameron Wilkinson — the points leader among drivers in the IMCA Stock Cars class — won his sixth “A” feature at Off Road Speedway after overcoming a starting position five rows back.

But Wilkinson didn’t get to the front until the final lap, benefiting from a caution with just two laps left, which brought him to the rear bumper of Norfolk’s Tanner Pettitt on the ensuing restart.

Wilkinson then slipped past Pettitt on the inside of turn two and won a close finish at the flag stand, while Pettitt held off a late charge by Kyle Wilkinson to earn second place. Kyle Wilkinson finished third.

Fairbury’s Taylor Huss finally obtained his first IMCA Hobby Stocks feature win in seven tries at Off Road Speedway.

Huss, who has four top five finishes this season at the Norfolk track, didn’t get the lead until late in the race, employing a slide maneuver of his own.

Wyatt Lehman had led for 11 laps until a flat tire forced him to relinquish the lead to fellow Norfolkkan Lance Mielke, who led for the next six laps with Huss in pursuit.

Huss then drove his car to the bottom of turn three before sliding up the track alongside Mielke and taking the narrow win as the two cars passed the flagstand.

Neligh’s Jason Wilkinson, the points leader in the division, finished third.

IMCA SportMods points leader Colby Langenberg ran away with the feature win, his fourth of the season at Off Road Speedway.

James Roebuck of Genoa finished second with Mason Richards of Denton taking third place.
