Off Road winners overcome difficult starting positions

By Randy Pospishil

sports@norfolkdailynews.com

Only one of the four IMCA division winners began the race among the first three rows in the starting grid, while the other three started at least four rows behind the pole sitter. Making up the most ground on Saturday was Lincoln's Cade Richards, who traveled from the sixth row in the field of 16 cars to the front to earn his first Off Road Speedway win in the Late Models division. Richards survived a four-car battle for fourth to enter the top three with 14 of the 25 laps left then, without a caution to help close the gap, still had to catch up to race leader Travis Birkley. That meant winning a duel with Alex Banks, who was also in pursuit. Richards caught and passed Banks on the inside one lap later and, using the high side of the track to gain momentum, was able to pass Birkley on the outside while exiting turn four just before catching up to lapped traffic. Richards was still able to navigate a path to the finish line, pulling away during the final six laps for the win with Wakefield's Birkley taking second place and Banks, of Newman Grove, finishing third.

Neligh's Jason Wilkinson was on the outside of row five at the beginning of the 18-lap IMCA Hobby Stocks "A" feature, a race that got off to a rough start with a red caution after a four-wide set of cars entered turn one but didn't squeeze successfully through turn two. Travis Landauer's No. 45 car rode the wall a short distance before ending up resting on the hood of fellow Norfolkian Travis Flemming. A complete restart without the two incapacitated cars moved Wilkinson into row four, and five laps later he passed race leader Jace Malasek as the pair raced down the backstretch. They continued to battle for the lead during the final 12 laps, including a single-file caution and restart caused by debris on the racetrack with three laps remaining. Wilkinson's victory is his fourth this season at Off Road Speedway while Malasek, of Emerson, grabbed a second-place finish that is his second top five this summer at the track. Using a burst of speed immediately out of the restart, Nate Buck of Neligh finessed his way through a four-car competition to advance from sixth place with two laps left into third-place, edging Norfolk's Shannon Pospisil at the finish line.

Despite starting in the fourth row, James Roebuck of Genoa still managed a win in the IMCA SportMods feature. Roebuck darted between cars one lap after the race's second and final caution to get the lead, then held off Cameron Meyer from Pierce the last eight laps as the two cars finished first and second, respectively. Jacob Slough of Doniphan narrowly picked up third place following a seven-lap battle with Randolph's Wes Hochstein. After a quick move into the middle of the pack that resulted in a brief four-wide battle for the lead, Neligh's Kyle Wilkinson eventually added to his points lead with a win in the IMCA Stock Cars "A" feature. Kyle Wilkinson and Norfolk's Ron Pettitt provided a two-car race-long battle as the rest of the field spread out behind them, but Wilkinson eventually secured the win with Pettitt finishing second and Neligh's Derek Sehi in third.

Norfolkian Kyle Reed won his fourth of the season's nine features in the four-cylinder class. Christian Krueger of Pierce was awarded second place and AJ Hawthorne of Battle Creek third. There will be no regular program of racing at Off Road Speedway on Saturday, July 22 as the track prepares for its second special event of the season featuring the XR Super Series cars on Sunday, July 23, through Tuesday, July 25.

Ricky Thornton, Jr. wins Elkhorn 100 at Off Road Speedway

By Randy Pospishil

Twenty-seven cars lined up to compete in the first-ever “Elkhorn 100” at Off Road Speedway on Tuesday night. The race, a 100-lap feature that concluded the XR Super Series’ two-day Super Late Model special event at the track, offered a $100,000 purse to the winner. That winner, Ricky Thornton Jr. — a 32-year-old driver from Martinsville, Indiana — notched his first victory of the 2023 XR season.

Thornton Jr. expressed his thanks to XR Events “for putting up big money” and added recognition to the estimated record-breaking crowd in attendance. “I want to thank the fans at Off Road Speedway who supported the event in such a big way,” Thornton Jr. said. “What a race!”

Thornton Jr., began racing in 2005 at the age of 14 and eventually started racing Lucas Oil late models in 2018 — winning both the Lucas Oil Late Model Dirt Series Rookie of the Year title and Dirt Track World Championship in 2021. Thornton Jr. boasts an overall win total of 368 — including more than 30 championships — with a career record of 22 wins in 75 XR races, with 54 top five finishes overall.

In Tuesday’s Elkhorn 100, Thornton Jr. started on the outside of row two and immediately became embroiled in a competitive seven-car battle, with Daulton Wilson (Fayetteville, North Carolina) taking the early lead.

Wilson maintained his advantage during the race’s first 36 laps — despite five caution restarts — until Thornton Jr. closed to Wilson’s rear quarter panel coming out of turn four on one lap. Then Thornton Jr. pulled alongside in the same turn the next time around the track and briefly held the lead for a pair of laps until Wilson managed to move back to the front with 60 laps left as the leaders moved into lapped traffic. Four laps later, Thornton Jr. moved his No. 20 (RT) car back into the lead but, 20 laps later, a new challenger appeared — Bobby Pierce of Oakwood, Illinois. Pierce grabbed the lead temporarily with 37 laps remaining, staying in the lead for 18 laps until Thornton Jr. exploded out of turn two during the restart following the race’s eighth and final caution. At this point, just 16 of the original 27 cars remained, but Thornton Jr. —who led the final 19 laps — still caught lapped cars once more and navigated his way through them the final dozen laps to secure the win. Pierce, who spent most of the race in second place but had slipped to third on a handful of occasions, ultimately finished second, while Kyle Bronson of Brandon, Florida, took third place. Rounding out the top five were Brandon Sheppard (New Berlin, Illinois) and Wilson. Winners of a pair of “B” features preceding the Elkhorn 100 were Ryan Gustin of Marshalltown, Iowa, and Sheppard. Three area drivers participated in the “A” feature, all of Norfolk, but only Ben Sukup completed the race, finishing 18th. Tad Pospisil and Junior Coover both left the race before its conclusion but were awarded 23rd and 26th place, respectively.
